E.V. Roberts adds Two Technical Account Team Members

To further support our customers in the aerospace and industrial markets, we are pleased to announce the addition of Tom Logsdon and Megan Coughlin to the E.V. Roberts account team.

Tom assumes the role of Senior Technical Account Manager for the Orange County and San Diego regions in southern California. He joins the E.V. Roberts team with a vast amount of expertise in adhesive technologies - acquired through his 30 years of experience and a successful tenure at 3M. His expertise and problem-solving abilities make him a solid technical resource for our aerospace and industrial customers.

Megan is our new Technical Account Manager for the Northwest region of the United States. She joins our team with a passion for customer service excellence - gained through her success in management roles at recognized leaders such as IKEA and Nordstrom. Her dedication to customer service, along with lessons learned from her family's 30-year involvement in the aerospace industry, makes Megan a natural fit for E.V. Roberts' customers.

In their new roles, Megan and Tom will work with customers to identify and manage implementation of material solutions to applications – seamlessly supporting their operations and processes.
